

Robert T. Person, PhD
United States Military Academy

Russian Grand Strategy in the 21st Century

Robert Person is an Associate Professor of International Relations at the United States Military Academy and Director of Curriculum for West Point's International Affairs Program. Dr. Person's research focuses on the foreign and domestic politics of Russia and the former Soviet states. He has published extensively on regime support, mass mobilization, hybrid warfare, and the international relations of the post-Soviet states. His current book project, in progress, examines Russian grand strategy in the 21st century. Dr. Person holds a Ph.D. in political science from Yale University and an M.A. in Russian, East European, and Eurasian Studies from Stanford University. He is also a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and a Resident Fellow at the Modern War Institute. Follow him on Twitter at @RTPerson3 and visit his website at www.robert-person.com

