Dr. Abraham Wagner currently teaches in the areas of national security and intelligence at Columbia Law School and UCLA. He is also a Senior Research Fellow at the Center for Advanced Studies on Terrorism. Prior to joining Columbia in 2005 he served in several U.S. government positions, including the National Security Council Staff, the Office of the Director of Central Intelligence and the Department of Defense. In 2016-2017 he was a member of the Trump-Pence transition team chairing the group on cybersecurity policy. He also lectures on national security and counter-terrorism issues, appearing on Fox News and other media, and is a frequent contributor to the Washington Times. Dr. Wagner writes and consults on national security issues, with a focus on technical issues, such as the evolving threat from cyberterrorism and issues related to electronic surveillance. He also serves as a consultant to several U.S. Government agencies.

His publications include Henry Kissinger: Pragmatic Stateman in Hostile Times (2019), Cybersecurity and Cyberlaw (2019); Domestic Intelligence: Needs and Strategies (2009); Terrorism and Surveillance: The Technical and Legal Context (2007); Terrorism, Global Security and the Law (2007); Meeting the Terrorist Challenge: Coping with Failures of Leadership and Intelligence (2007); Cyber-Terrorism: Evolution and Trends (2004); a four-volume series (with Anthony Cordesman) Lessons of Modern War (Volume 1: The Middle East, Volume 2: The Falklands and Afghanistan, Volume 3: The Iran-Iraq War; and Volume 4: The Golf War). Dr. Wagner received his A.B., MA, Ph.D., and JD degrees from Harvard University.