

Marshall Monroe - Brief Bio

Marshall Monroe is a serial innovator and strategic advisor working across private sector, NGO, and government domains. He is founder and Chairman of Marshall Monroe MAGIC, and he is the progenitor behind Walt Disney Company theme park concepts, economic public policy initiatives, and multiple new ventures. Monroe and his unique studio-lab team focus on agile development in software and hardware, realizing initiatives that are at once transformative and consequential of national interest.

Monroe holds 16 patents and is father of the Quantum Diamond™ AI software environment for innovation velocity. He is a former member of the National Intelligence Science Board (ISB), and he advises U.S. Special Forces on navigating the forward operating environment for security and a next-generation of unrestricted warfare.

Monroe has lectured on Innovation Excellence and future strategies at the Naval Postgraduate School, speaking frequently to professional audiences on topics from creative leadership to a new era for academia in the virtual age.

Monroe's unique insights on strategy and transformation are fueled by a deep research and engagement with scientific studies in storytelling, human-machine teaming, and quantum-leap realization.

Monroe is the author of the book Dream Too BIG? and is founder of the National Center for Soft Power Strategies.
