

Dr. Justin Anderson and Dr. Shane Smith Biographies

Dr. Shane Smith is Director of the Air Force Institute for National Security Studies, located at the U.S. Air Force Academy, where he is also an Associate Professor of Political Science. Prior to joining the U.S. Air Force Academy, Dr. Smith was a Senior Research Fellow at the National Defense University's Center for the Study of Weapons of Mass Destruction. He has served in the Office of the Security of Defense as a senior advisor for U.S. nuclear policy in East Asia and as a senior advisor at the Defense Threat Reduction Agency.

Dr. Justin Anderson is a Senior Policy Fellow at National Defense University's Center for the Study of Weapons of Mass Destruction. His research focuses on deterrence (nuclear and non-nuclear), nuclear forces, and future nuclear arms control agreements and confidence-building measures (CBMs). Prior to joining the Center, he was a Senior Policy analyst at Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC), providing research and analysis on arms control, nonproliferation, counter-WMD, and deterrence issues to the U.S. Air Force, USSTRATCOM, Defense Threat Reduction Agency, and OSD Office of Treaty Compliance. From 2009-10, in support of OSD Office of the General Counsel/International Affairs, he served as Editor of the Department of Defense Law of War Manual. Dr. Anderson has also taught at George Mason University, the Joint Services Command and Staff College (U.K.), King's College London, and Brookes University. He received his PhD and MA in War Studies from King's College London and BA in Diplomacy and World Affairs from Occidental College.