"A World Emerging from Pandemic: Implications for Intelligence and National Security (Part 2 of 2)" Panelist Biographies

Mr. Josh Kerbel

Mr. Josh Kerbel is a Professor of Practice at NIU, where he researches the increasingly complex security environment and the associated intelligence challenges. More specifically, he explores anticipatory intelligence: how the IC can better anticipate the appearance and/or course of emergent security phenomena. Prior to joining NIU, he held senior analytical positions at DIA, ODNI (including the NIC), the Navy staff, CIA, and ONI. His writings on the intersections of government—especially intelligence—and complexity have been published in Foreign Policy, The Washington Post, Studies in Intelligence, Slate, The National Interest, The Hill, War on the Rocks, Defense One, and Parameters, among other outlets. Mr. Kerbel has degrees from the George Washington University and the London School of Economics, as well as professional certifications from the Naval War College and the Naval Postgraduate School. More recently, he was a post-graduate fellow at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Mr. Jason Schenker

Mr. Jason Schenker is the Chairman of The Futurist Institute and the President of Prestige Economics. He is the author of over 30 books and the creator of over 40 online courses about finance, economics, risk management, leadership, and emerging technologies. Bloomberg News has ranked Mr. Schenker as the #1 forecaster in the world in 26 different categories, including oil prices, industrial metals prices, natural gas prices, the euro, the Russian ruble, and US jobs. Mr. Schenker has given over 1,000 speeches, including presenting to the National Intelligence University, Foreign Service Institute, NATO, USSOCOM, JSPOC, JSOU, SMA, 17th Training Wing, and CIA. Jason has given over 1,000 television interviews, and he has hosted Bloomberg Television. He has also appeared as a guest on CNBC, Fox, CNN, and the BBC. Mr. Schenker is a member of the Bretton Woods Committee and the Texas Business Leadership Council, a non-partisan nonprofit of 100 CEOs in the state of Texas who advise Texas state and federal elected officials. He lives in Austin.

Mr. Zachery Tyson Brown

Mr. Zachery Tyson Brown is a career intelligence specialist and researcher who has worked on intelligence issues in the government, military, and private sector. Mr. Brown most recently graduated from the National Intelligence University's Master of Science of Strategic Intelligence program, where he focused on intelligence community leadership and management and was awarded the Lieutenant Colonel Michael D. Kuszewski Award for Outstanding Thesis on Operations-Intelligence Partnership. Mr. Brown's writings on intelligence, defense, and strategy have appeared in publications such as Foreign Affairs, Foreign Policy, and War on the Rocks.